The Honorable Tom Cole
Ranking Member
Subcommittee on Labor-HHS-Education
Appropriations Committee
United States House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairwoman DeLauro and Ranking Member Cole:

As our country continues to address the COVID-19 pandemic with nurses, nursing students, and Advanced Practice Registered Nurses (APRNs) on the frontlines, we respectfully request that you invest in the nation's health by providing $530 million for the Nursing Workforce Development Programs (Title VIII of the Public Health Service Act, administered by HRSA) in the Fiscal Year 2022 Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies appropriations bill.

With more than four million Registered Nurses (RNs), APRNs, and other nurses with graduate degrees nationwide, the nursing profession makes up the largest sector of the healthcare workforce and are essential members of the health professions team. During the ongoing public health emergency, we have witnessed how vital our nation's nurses are to the health of all communities, particularly in rural and underserved areas. The RN and APRN pipelines rely on Title VIII program support to advance all aspects of the nursing workforce demand, including education, practice, recruitment, and retention. Title VIII programs bolster education at all levels, from entry-level preparation through graduate study. Further, these programs support academic institutions and the nurse faculty who prepare today's nursing students to be tomorrow's frontline providers.

It is now more critical than ever that communities across the country have access to equitable, evidence-based, high-quality, and timely care. Title VIII programs advance this endeavor by fostering training and employment opportunities to serve those most in need. For example, in Academic Year 2018-2019, the Title VIII Advanced Nursing Education (ANE) program supported 2,324 students, of which 62 percent received training in primary care settings. An additional 3,658 nursing students were supported under the Advanced Nursing Education Workforce (ANEW) program.

The Nursing Workforce Diversity program's success provides another great example of the Title VIII program's value. This program has increased opportunities for individuals who are from underrepresented groups and from disadvantaged backgrounds, with more than 11,000 students supported in Academic Year 2018-2019 alone. Additionally, program grantees worked with 789 training sites in medically underserved communities and primary care settings, providing 7,371 clinical training experiences.

These are just a few examples of how strong support and increased funding for our Title VIII Nursing Workforce Development programs directly contribute to the health care of our nation, especially in rural and underserved areas that need it most. We recognize that bold investment in the Title VIII Nursing Workforce Development programs translates into a strong investment in the nursing workforce, patient well-being, and the long-term sustainability of our nation's healthcare system. As we grapple with the immediate and long-term consequences of the pandemic, it is imperative that we support our current and future nursing workforce who continue to be on the frontlines and must be prepared for the health challenges of tomorrow. We greatly appreciate your past support and continued commitment to these programs as you consider our request.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Bonamici
